

Colin Ashraf says:

During the late '60s, when I first arrived in England, a group of us were bussed in to Little Ealing from Southall on a coach every day. Those of us on the bus had to wear an orange badge with an H on it. I enjoyed my two years at the school - nice teachers and nice dinners (except for that pink custard and the rhubarb!), which we ate in an old-fashioned army-style hut.

Photo sent in by Bernard W Hobbs.

Senior Boys, early 60s, from Bernard W Hobbs

Dr Barbara Goff says:

I was at the school during the great freeze of 1963, which led to indoor toilets being built for the first time. It was a wonderful place to be (apart from the outdoor toilets) and my elder son is there now - we moved back here especially! My parents, brother, uncles, aunts and cousin all attended, and in fact my father, Kenneth Goff, was the first chair of the PTA that was formed under Mr Neame. I think my mother Margaret was the secretary. My aunt, Pamela Babcock (nee Maynard) visited recently from Canada and was pleased to come to the school to make a donation.

Best wishes for the next 100.

Little Ealing Dance Group from 1976/7, after winning a local dance competition.

Class of around 1971

Jackie Boothe says: "This was my last year at Little Ealing Primary school, and the class photo consists of the two 4th year classes as we were called then.

The other picture is Mr Kellie and Miss Burke, who were accompanying us on our end of year trip to France. I have very fond memories of my time at little Ealing. My experience was so good, that my daughter is now attending the school 😊"

